copper smelter near Kamloops after the provincial government today promised to bring in new mining legislation with incentives for development of new refining facilities.

Construction will start immediately on development of the Afton Mines Ltd. property into an $80 million mining and smelting complex which will produce 25,000 tons of copper a year.

Teck Corporation, sponsors and major shareholders of Afton, told the government it would go ahead with the project after Ecoromic Development Minister Gary Lauk promised new legislation to encourage development of

Lauk said two other groups of companies are also discussing the possibility of starting new copper smelters as a result of the government's promise.

The legislation, which Lauk said would likely be brought in within a year, will provide a sum equivalent to 2 cents a pound for each pound of copper processed by any new smelter for four years. new smelter for four years.

This incentive will likely amount to about $3.3 million for the Afton project, said Lauk.

But the period of incentives could be extended beyond four years for other smelter projects. Contingent upon the government incentive is an allow

Food Prices

What does it take to get the provincial cabinet to make up its mind on the matter of an investigation of food prices? Supermarkets jack up their prices overnight to squeeze in under the wire of controls, and the government is still reportedly "considering" the subject? The controls "hot line" in Vancouver gets 500 telephone calls in its first 24 hours of operation, mostly about food prices, and the word in the cabinet's mind is still, "maybe?"

Agriculture and Finance Minister Dave Stupich seems to be applying the brakes in cabinet on the question. While his boss, Premier Dave Barrett, calls the supermarkets' actions "outrageous" and castigates the federal food prices review board for talking tough but producing little action, Stupich pauses to rub his chin and wonder out Joud "if it wouldn't be a good idea to find out why our food prices in B.C. are as high as they are."

Perhaps Stupich hesitates because of what a full-fledged investigation might uncover. The new chairman of Ottawa's anti-inflation review board, Jean-Luc Pepin, last week aired a hunch of his that "there's something wrong" with marketing boards—which the B.C. agriculture minister has defended to the hilt on numerous other occasions.

No doubt prompted by his colleague, Beryl Plumptre, who engaged in a running battle with various marketing boards during her tenure as chairman of the food prices review board, Pepin said he didn't think marketing boards were providing a maximum return to Canadians.

In return for granting such boards monopoly power to administer production and sale of such basic commodities as milk, eggs, wheat, what have Canadians received in return? Certainly not the stable and steady supply promised by marketing boards' proponents. B.C. has a year's supply of turkey glutting cold storage lockers. The mess created by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency is too sordid to bear repeating. Have they moderated prices in return for guaranteed markets? Twenty miles away in Washington state, eggs sell for 20 and 30 cents a dozen cheaper than they do in market-controlled B.C.

Stupich was quoted last week, recalling the food prices review board's finding of a year ago that B.C. had the highest markup on chicken prices in Canada, but never produced the reasons for such a disparity. Stupich figured it might be "appropriate now to find out why..." Appropriate and then some. Why wasn't it "appropriate" 12 months ago?

Part of the problem lies with ourselves. Each increase in the price of milk or eggs is accepted meekly by most consumers. But for most of this year, there has been one avenue of redress—the "super-board" established by the province to hear complaints and appeals about individual marketing boards. Its first chairman said recently he was astonished that not a single appeal concerning price increases had come to board and he felt that some complaints had merit, and the increases might have been successfully rolled back—if some individual or group had only appealed.

True, the appeal must be accompanied by a $100 deposit, and its existence hasn't been overwhelmingly advertised by the provincial government (isn't this something that the consumer services department should be trumpeting from the roof of the legislative buildings?), but it is a useful means of attack. No possible weapon should be passed over in the fight to hold down food prices.

The province's responsibility in the matter doesn't end there, however. If, as Premier Barrett claims, the federal food prices review board "talked tough but produced little action" then his government has an obligation to do something.

The food prices review board was accomplished at producing detailed and wonderfully researched reports on different commodities, but not until just before it was merged into the anti-inflation board did Mrs. Plumptre begin to communicate with consumers.

A provincial probe, with wideranging public hearings and representatives from every part of the food industry present, could go a long way at least to explain the present system—no small accomplishment—and do the spadework for some changes.

Questions

Question: Is Dave Barrett a politician above all else?

Answer: If W. A. C. Bennett had brought in Bill 146 what would Opposition Leader Dave Barrett have said? — Keith Simmons, Port Coquitlam.

A Poor Victory

Barrett complains that no advance information was given to the Premiers invited to the turkey dinner with Trudeau. Pierre must have taken a leaf from Dave's book.

Barrett announces a special session of the legislature, to a a with the propane dispute. The NDP Caucus was neither informed or consulted. When the session opened it was confronted with a full-blown bill that must have taken days to formulate. Chagrin and astonishment was the portion of the NDP MLAS. The backlash from labor was predictable, with the B.C. Fed planning to run union men as candidates in the next election.

Let's put the blame where it belongs, solely on the cabinet. Had the caucus been consulted the results might have been different. Barrett's weakness within the NDP was revealed when he dared not consult the caucus. If he can't depend on and trust his own caucus, where is he? Three months after the national convention, the basic ideological division within the NDP that only surfaced then, is now out in the open. Deception, abandonment of socialist principles and attacks on labor are now part of the NDP program. I hope the B.C. Fed carries through with success their its to run union men against cabinet ministers.

The passage of Bill 146 didn't produce a single new work order for any timber company. Ninety days from now the depression will be deeper, more men out of work. Barrett will not have achieved an upswing in the economy. He will have lost Labor's support as a consequence of the passage of Bill 146. Barrett's Pyrrhic victory is no victory for the working man. — Arline Flood, Sooke.

Arduous Task

We greatly appreciate the forthright stand your editorial page has taken on the explosive and unpopular issue — capital punishment.

As Prime Minister Trudeau moves to a conclusion regarding capital punishment in Canada, we trust that both the human and the divine spirit which dwells in all men will find an expression in that final decision.

It must be an arduous task to reach an honest conclusion when public sentiment is so emotionally charged that reason appears to be abandoned. It will require an act of courage for him to vote his conscience when political expediency dictates a response to the large public demand for a return to the death penalty. But to retrogress, to return to the barbaric state, can be neither rational or just. To take the life of another human being is a heinous act, whether it be done by an individual in greed or by a government in vengeance or in fear.

Surely Canada, through her leaders, should be among those civilized countries that bear witness to the mental, moral and spiritual maturity of their national development. — Hagbarth and Rosamond Sorensen, 129 Fern Street.

Unworkable

The department of labor is currently circulating widely an illustrated pamphlet stating the details of the new human rights code against discrimination in employment and housing. While the fairness of the intent is good and obvious to all, the government should be reminded that it is itself a discriminatory employer. It is written into the Public Schools Act that no ordained minister may teach or be employed in a public school, and such a person would in fact be refused a teaching licence. This is discrimination on religious grounds, specifically forbidden in the code. But by the same code, school boards cannot any longer refuse to employ persons who have a criminal record if they could argue successfully that it was unrelated to teaching or typing or sweeping floors.

Do people really prefer a criminal to a minister to be in change of their children? I think not unless they are unrepentant bigots, and this is an unworkable piece of legislation. Parents have rights too, and should have the right to say more about who shall and shall not teach their children. This implies an employee's right to discriminate for the benefit of the people he serves.—Lavinla Greenwood, 687 Mount Joy Avenue.

Economic Bungling

As a researcher and teacher for almost 25 years, I have found that it is necessary to insist that a student must be capable of clearly stating the problem before undertaking any experimental studies. Perhaps the federal government should undertake to do the same thing before either attaching blame or attempting to solve our economic problems for it seems to me that at least two problems are being confused.

First there is an increasingly inequitable distribution of wealth, which no longer has any relationship to goods and render the service and the cost of doing services produced, years of training required in order to produce the goods or so, the 'risk and danger to ones health, the difficulty of the task or the lasting benefit to the world. The second appears to be inflation which results from an over-valuation of our currency so that it no longer represents goods and services produced and deficit spending on the part of the federal and provincial government. Closed union shops must sume much of the responsibility for the first, which allow price fixing by unions and at the same time protect incompetence. Few if any of our union leaders are trained economists yet our economy is being determined by them. The federal government is largely responsible for the second problem by wasting far too much money and under taking too many massive projects which Canadians cannot afford to undertake and by attaching more value to our currency than it is worth on the international market. The problem with housing is multiple. It is not simply interest rates. It is permitting speculative land buying. It is price fixing by landlords. It is a housing policy by the federal government which encourages the development of a rich landlord class. It is closed shops. It is an unrealistic immigration policy. It is 'allowing landlords to hold slum housing without improvement for speculative purposes by cities instead of expropriation of such property.

Canadians simply no longer have a free enterprise system. Canadians mus realize that they will have to become more realistic in their demands on their governments. Instead of building massive rapid transit systems they must begin thinking in terms of building cities in which less transport is required Parents cannot expect citizens without children to pay taxes to fill school yards with cars and pay for the sociological problems that driving to school creates. (One need only need study the faces of youngsters coming out of school on Gordon Head to appreciate how inadequate children who cannot get in a car to get home feel when fellow class mates can. It is only after the problem is recognized that a solution can be found. Inflation has become the scapegoat for all our problems and everyone's problems when in fact it is not. Inflation itself could be simply dealt with by devaluing our currency. Our problems cannot. Everyone tell us it is undesirable when it is just what some people desire for it is the eans by which they acquire far more goods and services than they have earned or have a right to. - A.K., Vic-

Arion Fellowship

For years, Victoria's Arion male voice choir has ranked in musical calibre with many of Canada's top a mateur status choirs. Formed by a small group of men in 1882, Arion attained the status of being the oldest-established male choir in Canada, and has always been active since conception. Its membership has always been large, and has included men of all ages, 15 to 92.

Recently there has been an unfortunate change, basically in membership, and it would be unfair to state that this will result in a change in musical expertise, something which the choir fought hard to achieve. Some tend to think that it will, as many talented musicians have left the choir, including some key soloists and young people, but only time will tell. The public will be the judge.

At formation, Arion was based upon fellowship. With much dissension in the ranks this season, one worders if that same kind of fellowship with which Arion was formed will ever be restored. Hopefully it will, as Arion has meaht a great deal to many of us, and has played a large part in our lives.

With good leadership, Arion is capable of regaining that which it has lost.—John R. McVie, Sidney.

City police and detectives will be able to move into their new quarters in the front of the police building on Fisgard Street by early next week. A tour of the building will convince any citizen that convenience and simplicity have been obtained in a good job for a very low figure — the expenditure to date being $66,000. There are many little details which will contribute to the comfort of the prisoners in the jail section of the building. The future will rarely record escapes of prisoners such as have occurred in the past, and which have not been flattering to the city's credit.

JAMES RESTON

American Commonwealth 1976

WASHINGTON — In 1888, when Lord Bryce published his classic volumes, The American Commonwealth, he thought America was sailing "a summer sea" and setting a course of responsible liberty that would be a model for the world. Now Irving Kristol and Nathan Glazer have produced a thoughtful and troubling 10th-anniversary issue of The Public Interest, which looks at The American Commonwealth-1976 and finds that the seas are stormy and the outlook for liberty and democracy is bleak and distressing.

"What have we learned?" Daniel P. Moynihan asks in his introduction to this provocative analysis of our first 200 years. We have learned, alas, he suggests, that neither liberty nor democracy is prospering in the world, that neither would seem to have a future as aus-

The most important fact about the American political experiment almost a century after Bryce's summer seas, Moynihan says, is that the world in general has rejected our democratic model and turned away from our course.

Bryce Was Wrong

Bryce thought that America's institutions were the answer to mankind's Jongings, "towards which, as by a law of fate, the rest of civilized mankind are forced to move." Moynihan, now our ambassador to the United Nations, former U.S. ambassador to India, and the happiest pessimist in government today, concludes rather sadly that Bryce was wrong.

"To the contrary," he says, "liberal democracy on the American model tends to the condition of the monarchy in the 19th century, a holdover form of government, one which persists in isolated or peculiar places here and there, and may even serve well enough for special circumstances, but which has simply no relevance to the future. It is where the world was, not where it is going..."

The authors of this remarkable survey of our history—Robert Nisbet, Martin Diamond, Nathan Glazer, Irving Kristol, Samuel Huntington, Seymour Lipset, James Q. Wilson, Aaron Wildavsky, and Daniel Bell—are not crying for a world that is gone, but are trying to define where we are 200 years after the Declaration, and where America is going. They ask awkward questions.

Has popular democracy gone too far?

Have our expectations outrun our resources? Have the spirit of protest, the muckraking impulse to expose, got out of hand? Will life in any society bear all this endless psychological analysis, when the faith and values of the republic of

SINGAPORE — In spite of an assured supply of feathered tribesmen and tropical jungle, the newly-independent paradise of Papua New Guinea is not expected to enjoy an instant tourist boom, and Prime Minister Michael Somare has apparently said that in any case he does not wish to see the "primitive" attractions of his people and the second of the proping the second of the proping and the second of the proping and the second of the proping attractions of his people and the second of the proping attractions of his people are second or the proping attractions of his people are second or the proping attractions of his people are second or the proping attraction and the proping attraction attraction and the proping attraction attraction and the proping attraction and the proping attraction and the proping attraction and the proping attraction attraction and the proping attraction attraction profits to be earned by converting a country into a human zoo. Only two years ago former cannibals from the Papuan highlands apcannoals from the Papuan inginatus approached the committee organizing a major festival and offered to bring in the crowds by eating human flesh. They would not revert to their old skills and skewer an enemy for the purpose, they added reassuringly. A corpse purpose, they added reassuringly. A corpse from the morgue would do. But one wonders which travel agent put them up to it. The tribesmen themselves could not possibly have known the market that well.

They could conceivably have been in-spired by the words of the Chairman of the Hong Kong Tourist Association (HKTA) who declared: "Tourism keeps alive some of the finer things in life which might otherwise be allowed to wither and die in our predominantly materialistic society." But that would have been stretching the point a little, even if—as has been implied—the Crown Colony's lamentable rickshaws could be included in his definition. For had it not been for the curiosity of the tourist, "this ancient means of transportation" would also have disappeared long ago, Ralph Lee has commented.

Does one detect a note of dry, ecclesias tical wit? Ralph Lee is the Reverend Ralph Lee, and his comment appears in a report published by the Christian Conference of Asia, a balanced but often biting study in which this regional organization for Protestant Churches wrestles for the first time with the problem of tourism — not as a devil to be cast out, but as a sinner to be saved.

The cartoons in the booklet — Tourism: the Asian Dilemma — are as simple and sharp as cheese-wire ("My husband and I went around the world last year, but there wasn't much to see"), but the editors and wasn't much to see), but the endors and their field-workers tell of good as well as evil and put up constructive proposals for clerical intervention, while confessing that the Church has sadly neglected the tourist (forgetting, it seems, that Genesis leads straight

Kong Christian council set up its own travel agency and help establish a youth hostel, so that serious young-people can find a bed they can afford, and be offered cheap guided tours to something more elevating than the nearest camera shop or cathouse.

The Christian Protestant Church of Bali

notes that as the population soars and life in the backward countryside becomes grimmer year by year, frustrated youth flock to the towns only to find that tourism has become .

A few people prosper but poverty untouched they cannot qualify for jobs because they do not speak English or German or Japanese or know how to drive a car. A study carried out by the local Udayana University shows that whereas Balinese exports of all agricultural products from coffee to livestock earned more than did the tourist trade in 1969, tourism was earning nearly 50 per cent more than all exports put together by 1973.

The middlemen make money, but in and it is the poorer Balinese that pay. Skilled wood-carvers earn pittances, and a whole village may be given $18 for dancing to an audience of alien layabouts who have collectively contributed a fee of $900 (including transport) to watch. Meanwhile the excruciating gap between what a tourist gives and what the native receives reduces their rela-tionship almost to one of master and slave. The Udayana researchists say that the average tourist spends $41.50 a day in Bali, while restaurant employees make $12.10, in-dependent craftsmen $12 — and economy-class hotel workers $9.60 — a month. The Christian Conference, quoting overall figures for South and South-East Asia, calculated that a tourist will pay more for a meal-than a waitress earns in a week, more for a taxi than, a porter will spend on travel in a year, re for a camera than a gardener will make in a lifetime lutes, corrupts, breeds racial resentment, but it also persuades people to do right for the wrong reasons, Udayana University and the Christian Conference both seem to prove. The Balinese are cleaner (tourists pay less for dirt), they study their religion more carefully (because tourists ask questions about it), they preseve their traditional dances and music and arts (but edit them to suit the tastes of free-spending foreigners), and their administration is planning a new holiday pre-cinct in which the tourists will be largely segregated from the ordinary Balinese in order to conserve Balinese culture—why? Because Balinese culture is the essential "tourist attraction of the island."

The Protestant Church in Bali*is working on a modest transmigration scheme to thin out the humanity on the ground, it is organizing courses in family planning, hygiene and nutrition, and running an experimental farming program in order to fight the social diseases that tourism aggravates.

But in part its strategy for beating the racket is to join it by giving youngsters vocational classes in driving and foreign languages, and by operating a non-profit-making "travel bureau cooperative" to train and find jobs for the boys from the villages, and to hire the villagers themselves to dance for the tourists for a fair fee.

It is also bringing pagan Balinese dancing and gamelan (Asian xylophone) music into Christian churches in order to afford sanctu-ary to true Balinese culture, this turning the tables on tourism by doing what some might think wrong for the right reasons. For so much that was real life has been twisted into an artificial performance. There are now rubber-tappers in Singapore who move from rubber-tappers in Singapore who move from tree to tree to draw not latex, but visitors. Sturdy Malaysian fishermen and farmers dispossessed by the creeping tide of tourists are urged to make their living by flying kites or spinning tops for them, or peddling sarongs and seashells to them. The Balinese dance and carve for them, the Hong Kong rickshaw men sweat between the shafts for them there are even those who pray for them.

The pleasure island of Blakang Mati off Singapore is renamed Sentosa the better to lure them (it sounds prettier, and it means "serenity"), and the island of Serangoon is renamed Coney (it sounds uglier but it means all the fun of the fair). And, of course, among the rituals of daily life now staged as an act for foreigners is sex (which is renamed "incentive tourism").

An earlier report from Takahashi Kikue of the Women's Committee of the Japan Namajor travel agencies of Japan offer "kisa eng" parties as the main event in their package tours to South Korea — and a kisaeng is functionally indistinguishable from a well-groomed prostitute. In consequence "large groups of almost totally male Japanese tour ists" arrive in Seoul, "looking like an army of black, marauding ants," and evoke most instinctive repulsion." A Korean Chris-tian women's organization complains bitterly that they "use Korean women as sexual slaves," and the Korean Press has branded the Japanese male a "sex animal" bent on

The operation is carried out blatantly and by the busload, the "abnormal, boorist" tourists heading for the kisaeng houses in or-ganized clumps, or picking the girls up in their hotels and boasting loudly of their prowess in the public dining-room at break-fast the next morning. The Conference bookfast the next morning. The Conference book-let also reproduces an "Ecstasy Map" of Bangkok together with pictures and piquant data on available Thai girls, as published in magazines obtainable throughout Japan from all reliable stockists.

But globetrotters are not evil human, and the chairman of the HKTA was right — they preserve even as they destroy. Not every Japanese is sex-struck, tourism is not all touts and tarts, and sacred edifices are still the second oldest attractions in the Nonetheless, while the old British ar tillery fortress in Singapore has just been thrown open to sightseers much as it was, I see that the military chapel is to be converted into a snack bar and souvenir shop. Secularisation has no limits, and it is time the churchmen took an interest. It may be later than they think. The last converted chapel I slope. It had been turned into a morgue.

Trudeau Arrogance (Contd.)

THE GLOBE AND MAIL An Editorial

What-kind of concept does Prime Minister Pierre Tru-deau have of this country when he can refer to parts of t so slightingly?

The latest to feel the flick of his contempt are Toron-tonians — because they op-posed the Pickering airport and eventually, though the ballot box, convinced the provincial government it was not acceptable. Mr. Trudeau was opening the new Mirabel air-port northwest of Montreal, a magnificent and costly palace which is not at all certain to survive except as a great white elephant.

white elephant.

In his formal speech he said the elederal government "never had any doubt about the need for the new airport." "Had we the least," he said. "the regrettable defection which is forcing us to abandon the Pickering project would have cured us of that very quickly."

very quickly."

Asked later if the second phase of Mirabél would pro-'ceed 'now that Pickering is no longer there," he replied, "The Torontonians will be

"The Torontonians will be down here on their knees."

It was a mean-minded slap at a group of Canadians who had put conservation of farm land, the quality of life in their area, and the realities of the energy impact on air transport ahead of the dictates of Ottobase 10 these of Ottobase 10 their area. tates of Ottawa.

The attitude is not new, course. When a great many Canadians were anxious to help starving children in Biafra, the prime minister was able to say, "Where's Bia-fra?" When the people of the Prairies were afraid because markets were failing for their economic mainstay, wheat, he was able to say, "Why should I sell your wheat?"

Mr. Trudeau does not con-cern himself with the views of other peoople, of ordinary Ca-nadians. Except when those people have dropped him into a minority position in the House of Commons, his head is turned from them, he has time only for the little pseudo-aristocratic group with which he consorts.

Those lesser beings — all the rest of Canadians — are expected to approach him "on their knees."

A Two-Faced Soviet Policy

"A diplomat", the old jibe has it, "is an honest man sent to lie abroad for his country". to lie abroad for his country.

No one expects a foreign representative to be ruthlessly unsparing of his homeland's faults and foibles. He is not paid to criticize. He is paid to portray his country and his government in their most favourable aspects. Some exaggliding by their faults, are thus to be expected when a diplomat sounds off.

But there are limits. Gentle half-truths—mild duplicity, even—are perhaps permissible. Not as brazen falsehoods. Soviet diplomacy—not for the first time—has been caught,

The Embassy of the U.S.S.R. in Canada picked the few days before "Prisoner of Conscience Week"—a campublic opinion everywhere upon the plight of men and women in countries as far apart geographically and ide-ologically as Turkey and Taiwan, Cuba and Singapore, Rhodesia and the Soviet Union, who are in prison for their political or religious beliefs—to inform Canadians about "the lives of Jews in the U.S.S.R.," about which—so Soviet Counsellor Victori I. Mikheev observes sententious know the truth",

According to Counsellor Mikheev, with the Jews of the Soviet Union all is fine and

The world, of course, will be watching the Soviet leaders' handling of the affair. What happens to Dr. Sakharov will provide some indication of the degree to which they are prepared to lectical virtuosity, "they are more educted as a group and this means more favoured in enjoying the cultural heritage Soviet Jews are not persecuted for their religion. On the contrary, they are allowed worship as they please, ecause religion is a private affair of all citizens". But, Counsellor Mikheev slips in slyly, "Soviet Jews, as other people, prefer better science than beliefs, and no one wishes to remain behind in the pursuit of knowledge".

Finally, Soviet Jews are not On the contrary, Counsellor Mikheev contends the over-whelming majority of Jews who want to leave the Soviet state have been allowed to do

Under Khrushchev, for a time, things went better—they could hardly get much worse. But after the Suez crisis hardened Soviet policy against. Israel and the drive against religion begun in 1958, the anti-semitism campaigns began once more.

On October 30, a letter singed by twenty-six Jews within Soviet Lithuania reached the newspapers of the West. It gave octails of the atrocities and defacements of Jewish monuments and cemeteries done before the approv-ing eye of Soviet authority, of official harrassment of Jews at work and school, of the systematic repression of their distinctive way of life. First Option For Art

Residents of Greater Victoria should be allowed first option to purchase art prints the Greater Victoria Library no longer needs, Oak Bay council agreed Monday night.

Library hoard secretary D. W. Miller said in a letter he has been instructed to ask member municipalities to request permission for disposal of "unwanted library materials."

He explained that the board has decided to discontinue public borrowing of framed art reproductions and there are about 725 of them-stored in the library.

"Since space is at such a premium, it has been decided to dispose of these pictures as soon as possible." he said.

Shore . . . a high U.K. honor

FORMER VICTORIAN ON ELITE PANEL

Miss Catherine Shore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. (Dick) Shore, Beicher, was recently elected to the Panel of Arts and Humanities for the National Council of Academic Awards of Great Britain. The panel has only 12 members in all England.

Miss Shore is head of music at St. Joseph's Grammar School at Blackheath, a suburb of London. She is also organist and choir director of St. George's Church, Bickley.

She began the study of piano in Victoria at St. Margaret's School where her teacher was Corinne du Val, and later took up the organ as a pupil of Richard Proudman.

She holds a Bachelor of Music degree, is an Associate of the Royal College of Music and Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music, London.

Mining Industry Unhealthy

TORONTO (CP.) - Unduly heavy taxes and unrealistic policies of both the federal and provincial governments is seriously undermining the health of Canada's mining in-dustry, says the executive director of the Ontario Mining Association.

Norman H. Wadge said the industry's reinvestment, capital has been severely dominished by recent taxation initiatives while the cost of developing new mines has skyrocketed.

Speaking to the Canadian Mining and Aggregate Equip-ment Manufacturers Association, he said federal studies show increasing world de-mand for metals will support at least a tripling of Canadian mine production during the next 20 years. This would require annual exploration investment of $200 million and capital expenditures of $1 billion a year, he said.

However, he said in view of current political attitudes he considers it highly unlikely the industry will be able to achieve the growth potential.

Wadge criticized those who ing it had a disastrous effect on the coal industry in Britain and the copper industry in Chile.

As well, he questioned whether an any bureaucratic structure can meet the chal-lenges mining in Canada will face in the next 25 years.

Deputy Labor Minister Raps Own Gov't Actions

By LIZ HUGHES

B.C.'s Deputy Labor Minister Jim Matlin was unaware of the province's back-to-work legislation when he wrote a magazine article on government intervention in labor dis-

He must have been, because his criticism of government interference included some of the actions his own department took in its sweeping return to work bill that forced 48,000 B.C. workers back on

The article was published in the August issue of the feder-al labor department's Labour Gazette, distributed this

The MCA was doomed from the start, Matkin says, and one of the reasons for its failure was the way in which it was introduced. Then-B.C. F

Then-B.C. Federation of Labor Secretary-treasurer Ray Haynes was summoned to Victoria by the minister of labor and told that a bill of interest to the federation was to be introduced that afternoon, the article says.

"So bitter was the hostility generated against the bill Matkin outlines the reasons even before it had passed into form in industrial relations.

Where significant group rights are in issue in a democratic society, it is imperative to develop a strategy of participatory legislative reform."
(B.C. Federation of Labor leaders learned of this month's back-to-work legisla-the flexible or ad hoc approach to the appointment of mediation officers or industrial inquiry commissioners under the new Labor Code has gained the confidence of the labor and management.

Reliance on the minister of labor or labor legislation to settle disputes discourages collective bargaining and genuine negotiations, Matkin says, because the parties rely

BOB HOGARTH . . . hired for advice

Bob Hogarth, the new professional at Royal Colwood, isn't going to miss the "buying fever" that he left at Royal Montreal.

After three weeks at his new job, Hogarth sees the merchandising pattern as the only major difference between the two golf clubs. Even bilingualism doesn't rate as a diference because Hogarth rarely had to speak French to Royal

'The big difference is the buying fever,'s said the 29ceed Bill Court. "I can see it in the short time I've been here "It explodes in Montreal. Members come into the shop on the first of May and start buying. It lasts two months, and

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who called off Monday night's scheduled game because of a slippery field, gave the green light for tonight with the optimistic as-surance that "the field will be much letter".

The weather was expected to be better than it has been in recent days. Fenway Park, under siege by a long-winded storm since last Friday night, recuperated under the tender care of a "lawn doctor," groundskeeper Joe Mooney, and was expected to be healthy again.

They almost played Monday night—and would have except that Kuhn wasn't entirely happy with the conditions.

Talented in Many Sports Nina Prefers Study Game

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH Times Staff

Nina Bland has no doubts about her list of priorities.

"School work comes first," says the 16-year-old Victoria resident. "I don't let my sports interfere with school. Last year I had an 89 per-cent average (grade 10)."

A lesser student might certainly be distracted by Nina's activities. She plays field activities. She plays field hockey for Norfolk House school and for the Mariners in the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association. She also plays squash and tennis. In the spring, she is busy with

Ex-Parks Chief Flays Cut, Get Out Logging

Former Victoria parks administrator Herb Warren today accused the B.C. forest industry of mismanaging public forest lands.

Warren, now 70 and still an active outdoorsman, submitted a brief to the Royal Commission on Forest Resources urging tighter controls in management of Crown is not uncommon to see "very serious erosion"

"I have seen streams run brown after the first fall rains in areas being logged, gullies 12 and 20 feet deep eroded in a few years," he stated.

He noted many logging roads in mo tainous areas are inadequately ditched and

"Log roads in cut-and-get-out operations' have been made up the stream beds, accentuating erosion," he noted.

While the government attempts to stop companies from dumping logging debris into streams, Warren said the practice persists.

"I have seen these streams cleaned up, but left completely blocked beyond the sight but left completely blocked beyond the signt of people," he said.

Warren expressed the hope the commission would give full consideration to matters other than economics in its deliberations, particularly in the matter of esthetic and recreational values of some forest areas.

He singled out rocky areas, alpine and sub-alpine areas as needing protection from logging.

"Logging in B.C. occurs on public land sible way beneficial primarily to us rather than primarily to the forest companies."

He noted the reverse situation has prevailed until quite recently.

"It is a sad situation when I have to drive 250 miles or so to show visitors what is left of our forest heritage at Cathedral Grove."

He noted that no consideration has been given to leaving corridors of trees next to

Warren said he was impressed by the prevailing practice of logging small patch areas as practised by the U.S. Forest Service

"I fail to see why we could not do the same or follow a practice of strip logging along the contours, the steeper the terrain the closer the strips to reduce erosion."

He added it seemed that U.S. logging companies follow better practices in the United States than their subsidiaries in B.C.

On the subject of forest closures, Warren said forest companies practise closures independent of the government's B.C. Forest

The public gets blamed for more than its share of fires by forest firms and the BCFS,

"Some years ago I was shocked to see a slash fire escape up a mountainside in a forest section and left unattended by a large logging company," he recalled. "Up there it vasn't worth fighting ... that seemed to be viduals or families, was advocated by James Collins, a Vancouver forester, at Monday's hearing of the Pearse Commission on Forest Re-tenure system of the province, he said.

There was a social need for this type of farm, he said. He explained that in the past two decades, the tenure pattern of cutting rights on public lands has changed from open public competition ia timber sales, to allocation rights - mainly to large in tegrated companies.

"The evolution from competitive timber sales to "quota" allocation and tree farm licences has had the undersirable effect of precluding the general public from direct participation in forest re-source development, except as employees, he observed. He noted that in most areas family timber operations have virtually disappeared.

While it was economically not leasible for families today to go into the business of cut-ing mature trees because of capital costs, he said, they could efficiently manage sec-

Intensive management of the farm would probably double the productivity of the land, he noted.

Through selective harvesting and thinning, he said, the family could recover minor forest products, such as shakes, firewood and Christmas trees. The final harvest-

WASHINGTON (UPI) The average age of Americans is rising will be well over 30 by the year 2000, says the U.S. Census Bureau.

The average age is now 28.6, and by the start of the next century the flood of babies born between 1956 and 1965 will be 35 to 44 years old and the compent will have and that segment will have increased 81 per cent over the current level.

During the same 25-year period, the number of persons 65 or older will rise considerably, the bureau said.

The estimated average age of Americans in 2000 will be between 31.4 and 37, the latest prediction said.

Population expansion is expected to run between 16 and 35 per cent during the re-mainder of the century, raising the total number of Americans from 212 million to between 246 million and 286 mil-mills.

Collins observed that second-growth forests on public sustained yield units are not being efficiently managed today.
"The main reason for lack of management in these stands is the difficulty of ad-ministration," he said. "inten-Crown would designate as does not have either the bud-forest farms, 200 to 1,000-acre areas of vacant public forest intensive management for se-

The desk of Victoria's city archivist, Ainshe Helmeken, is truly something to behold.

In actual fact the desk working surface itself simply cannot be seen at all. It's completely hidden under a pile of old letters, maps, photographs, ledgers, diaries, you name it.

"Why?" replied Helmcken. "I wouldn't be able to find anything if I did."

Frampton had no come-back to that. End of conversation.

BERYL BROILS CHICKEN COSTS

By VICTOR MACKIE

Times Ottawa Bureau OTTAWA — Broiler chickens are costing the Canadian housewives more than they should, the Food Prices Review Board said Monday.

It put the blame directly on the supply management marketing system.

The board in its second report on broiler chicken prices issued Monday said prices fixed by broiler marketing board "have been set suf-ficiently high to more than cover producer costs and in most cases, to return a considerable profit."

The average return on equity to many producers in the broiler industry is "extremely high" by normal business standards," the board found. It also found that while greater benefits had accrued to the producers under the broiler supply management, the producers 'have lost in-dependence and entrepre-neurial incentive.''

"Since broiler marketing boards have the power, under government sanction, to regu-late both price and production, the incentive for market dev-elopment and increased marketing efficiency is largely removed. The system has be-come one of market regula-tion rather than efficient mar-

It won't cost much to fall in love with London.

The sights, the sounds, the sheer delights of London are free or nearly so. Come see a few, but hang on to your heart. London is the greatest get-away-from-it-all place in the world. It's glamour, sophistication, down-to-earth decency, and just enough eccentricity to put you at ease and keep you there.

London is hotels that range from hushed elegance through dignified comfort to a cosy attic that's yours for about $10 a night with bacon, eggs, toast, marmalade, and tea for breakfast.

London is theatres done up in red plush and gilt; with boxes queens might have used, stalls where good seats cost the same as a movie at home, and 'gods" where you sit for a song, knees against your chin engrossed in spine-tingling drama.

London is parks: meadows, woods, lakes, and ponds within walking distance of the shops and sights. Green Park, Regent's Park, St. James's Park, Kensington Gardens, or Hyde Park where for less than $5 you can hire a horse and canter with the Guards in Rotten Row.

London is restaurants that rank among the finest, and prices which compare favourably with those you'll find at home. Intimate spots where you can dine after the theatre on fresh-caught Dover sole, and out-of-the-way spots where you can linger over lamb with rosemary and fresh pear flan.

London is buses: tall and red, roaring round corners, passing history at every intersection. Buses, where the price is always right as you climb to the top and slip into a front seat for the view that beats

London is shops: enormous emporiums, boutiques-where tomorrow's fashions have already given way to the day after's, and streetmarkets where egg beaters share space with silver candlesticks, and you buy your bargains with your wits.

London is pubs with good cheer pouring out the door to assail your senses as you walk by, stop you, and draw you back into their warm interiors where strangers make friends; and where you can lunch and get change from a pound.

London is people: warm friendly people. Proud Londoners, Cockneys talking in rhymes and enjoying life with a gusto you'll live.

London is the The same winding from Greenwich past museums, galleries, gardens, red-coated guardsmen, and history at every turn.

London is all you've heard and all you've read; a heart's delight that once it's got you wilf never let you go.

Britain, a treasure at a bargain!

What can we say about leather that hasn't been said before? Its unmistakable masculinity. Its incredible durability. Its beauty in the hands of a skilled cutter and stitcher. About the only trouble with leather is the darn price. But Tip Top has done something about that. By being big we can buy big. As a matter-of-fact, our stores from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island have got more leather coats and jackets than ever before.

So we saved some money bringing them to you. You save some And when you figure - in its years of wear, leather turns out to be more of an investment than an expense.

At its regular price of $175.00 this safari-styled, pigskin coat is a bargain. That becomes obvious when you find other stores selling their answer to it at $200 and more.

Or, if you should happen to desire something a little more polished, we've a collection of beautifully tailored coats in soft, smoothly finished leather.

At their four day price of $129.99, you're getting a leather coat

And so it came to pass that at trick two East led the jack of hearts, which South covered with the king. Upon winning with his ace, West now made a fine play by underleading his queen of hearts, hoping that his partner possessed the ten. East won this lead with the ten, and now returned a diamond, which West ruffed for the setting trick.

mond, when west three for the setting trick.

It will be noted that if East had played back a diamond for West to ruff at trick two, declarer would have fulfilled his contract. All the defenders could have made from here in would have been West's ace of hearts, for dummy's dia-mond suit would consist of

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR Wednesday, Oct. 22, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19): ARIES (March 21-April 19):
You get means which enable you to be more original, independent, forthright and forceful. Leo, Aquarius persons could be in picture. Accent is on what you own, how to profit by it and protect it. Don't be too trusting!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What seems an unnecessary delay actually will work to your advantage. Know it and your advantage. Riow it and time your moves. Realize that you can actually learn through teaching process. Aquarian who aided in past could make reappearance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The more you ask, the more answers you are likely to obtain. Give full play to intellectual curosity. Keep diet resolutions. If careless, you lose. You can get backing from special organization if you present blueprint of goals, as-

16 Pardon 19 Ocean CANCER (June 21-July 22): If realistic, wish is fulfilled. If childish, you will be doing lots of talking while accomplishing little or nothing. The choice is your own. Aquarius, DOWN 1 Meat company included in Leo, Scorpio persons figure in picture. Be specific. Deal with 2 With a look the little devil

3 Aim for the extremity (3) LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Open lines of communication with professional superior. Make known feelings, views. Be positive, analytical and direct. You have right to explain position — and perhaps 5 They hold records in trade 8 A struggle to maintain body-snatching would be? 11 Bill may be so conceited even a duty. facts and figures, not fanta-

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Family member who travels, studies may seek your coun-sel. Be diplomatic. Avoid any tendency to be arrogant. Domestic adjustment is in picture. Taurus, Libra indi-viduals could be featured. Your ability to sense potential is highlighted. Trust your highlighted. Trust your LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent continues on occult; hidden affairs, money that af-fects partner or mate. See as is, not in light of wishful thinking. Avoid tendency to-ward self-deception. You get unusual opportunity to perfect techniques. Pisces, Virgo could be involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

Accent on closing legal transaction. You get down to business. Game playing is over it is now the real thing, and stakes are substantial. Nothing is apt to be tepid; it is hot or cold, all or nothing. Capricorn figures prominently. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): World that seemed never-ending does reach a conclusion. You will be congratulated on job well done.

Aries, Libra individuals could be very much in picture. Find ways to enhance visibility of product, talent. You are due to attract larger audience.

> CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Get to core — express and create. Your style, impressions attract more persons. Personal magnetism flows. You could be more pop-ular — and controversial. Member of opposite sex con-fides, confesses and asks for your understanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 18): Basic issues dominate, especially where residence and family are concerned. Don't play games with security. Obtain legal green light, guarantee. Older individual might share valuable experi-ence. Be adult enough to accept help if you need it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel, decisions, calls ideas and messages seem to converge simultaneously. Obviously, the need is to be flexible, versatile, You expand base of operations. Life be-comes more interesting due to social contact. Gain indicated through written word.

IF TODAY IS YOUR IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, stubborn, were on your own early, have original concepts and find that Scorpio persons play important roles in life. You are entering a new phase, a fresh cycle — many cast discrepitments fade as past disappointments fade as you have chance at real hap-piness. You're going to get more authority and will prove

Shrubs, Trees Need Soil

The planting season here on the West Coast is always as-sociated with rain, which is the reason those gardeners fa-miliar with the climate prepare the planting holes for trees and shrubs in September while the soil is dry and easily-workable.

Heavy rains last week Heavy rains last week caught many gardeners un-prepared when their nursery orders arrived, or impuls

One gardener said it was "too bad" the rain had come just now, adding "but the plants are all safely in the basement until the weather

Nothing horrifies a nurseryman more than hearing that hardy outdoor plants are in a basement or garage. It is comparable to wrapping gold-fish in cotton wool to keep

MOROCCANS MASS FOR DESERT MARCH

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — Ters of thousands of Moroccans massed in the chill Atlas Mountains today for the start of a marathon march across the desert to lay claim to Spanish Sahara.

About 20,000 volunteers, the first of 350,000 promised by King Hassan, gathered at dawn in Ksar Es Souk, a village in eastern Morocco, for the first leg of the journey.

The volunteers; leaving Ksar Es Souk by truck this morning, were the first of the marchers to set our for Agadir, a staging area 350 miles to the southwest.

The 350,000 men and women will go by train Saturday to the Spanish Sahara border, another 200 miles to the south, for the hazardous trek across the desert to the Spanish-ruled

Organizers said the mammoth procession, accompanied by trucks with tents, food, doctors, nurses and ambulances, would take two days to walk across the desert into Spanish a "good shake-up" Hershell Smith, president of Sooke Forest Products Ltd., told the Royal Commission on Forest Resources on Monday.

'We need a new game, new ules and a new game manag administration of forests." he

Smith told the con there was a "glut" of low timber (pulp wood) on the market, but logging compa-nies are still cutting timber and using the best wood for pulp mills.

At the same time, mills like his own could not get suf-ficient saw logs in B.C., he

He got most of his timber, from the United States, he said. He said mills should be low grade timber now available to them before using high quality logs for pulp.

Anybody with a tree farm licence should have to submit a certain part of his log cut for open log market bidding.

This was challenged by Clayton Shaw, a lawyer representing MacMillan Bloedel and Andy Anderson of Rayonier Canada Ltd.

They said if this was allowed, large integrated com-panies would then be caught with plants that would be too large for forest areas for which they had been intended.

Smith claimed this would not be the case. There was plenty of timber, he said, and everyone would be permitted to bid on logs on the open

He said the companies who controlled most of the public lorest lands had grown "fat and lazy" because of the lack of competition.

"They resist change," he said. "This with time could put the province backward."

Kamloops Smelter Planned

copper smelter near Kamloops after the provincial government today promised to bring in new mining legislation with incentives for development of new refining facilities.

Construction will start immediately on development of the Afton Mines Ltd. property into an $80 million mining and smelting complex which will produce 25,000 tons of copper a year.

Teck Corporation, sponsors and major shareholders of Afton, told the government it would go ahead with the project after Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk promised new legislation to encourage development of copper smelters.

Lauk said two other groups of companies are also dis-cussing the possibility of starting new copper smelters as a result of the government's promise.

The legislation, which Lauk said would likely be brought in within a year, will provide a sum equivalent to 2 cents a pound for each pound of copper processed by any.

This incentive will likely amount to about $3.3 million for the Afton project, said Lauk. But the period of incentives could be extended beyond four years for other smelter projects.

TORONTO (CP) - Unduly ing it had a disastrous effect heavy taxes and unrealistic policies of both the federal and provincial governments is seriously undermining the health of Canada's mining industry, says the executive director of the Ontario Mining

Norman H. Wadge said the industry's reinvestment capi-tal has been severely dominished by recent taxation initiatives while the cost of developing new mines has skyrocketed.

Speaking to the Canadian Mining and Aggregate Equip-ment Manufacturers Associa-tion, he said federal studies show increasing world de-mand for metals will support at least a tripling of Canadian mine production during the next 20 years. This would require annual exploration investment of $200 million and capital expenditures of $1 billion a year, he said. However, he said in view of current political attitudes he considers it highly unlikely the industry will be able to muster the resources to achieve the growth potential.

Wadge criticized those who favor nationalization of Canada's resource industries say- explosive

"There is abundant material before me to indicate the college did so and I find it guilty as charged."

The charge was laid by the British Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons and alleged Leung and the company unlawfully carried on a school for training in medicine without the consent of the council of the medical body between Jan. 12, 1974, and July 11, 1974.

The charge was laid under Section 93 of The Medical Act.

BERYL BROILS CHICKEN COSTS

By VICTOR MACKIE

Times Ottawa Bureau OTTAWA - Broiler chickens are costing the Canadian housewives more than they should, the Food Prices Review Board said Monday.

It put the blame directly on the supply management marketing system.

The board in its second report on broiler chicken prices issued Monday said prices fixed by broiler marketing board "have been set sufficiently high to more than cover producer costs and in most cases, to return a considerable profit."

The average return on equity to many producers in the broiler industry is "extremely high" by normal business standards," the board found. It also found that while greater benefits had accrued to the producers under the broiler supply management, the producers "have lost in dependence and entrepre-neurial incentive."

"Since broiler marketing boards have the power, under government sanction, to regu-late both price and production, the incentive for market development and increased mar-keting efficiency is largely re-moved. The system has bewriters have been accredited to the conference — one from the Vancouver Province and maintain average price spreads which appear high in view of the limited marketing services required at this level.

The present policy leaves consumers with substantially increased costs which outincreased costs which out-weight any benefits that might come as a result of relatively stable supplies, the board found. It cautioned, however, against outright condemnation of supply manage ment. The board said it should be possible to develop an alternative to supply management which helped stabilize producer income but did not distort the normal functioning of the market.
